We were employed to construct an extension to St Johns Church in Castleside. The extension was built in a traditional style, with traditional materials to match the existing church. We salvage some of the original stone and dressed and tooled the new stone to match the existing. During the course of the works the client realised that they had a severe funding shortage so works were suspended until the church could seek further funding. The second phase works was also completed on delayed payments terms to enable the building to be completed so the community could benefit and the church was able to generate additional income.
